English Language Fellow Program

The U.S. Department of State English Language Fellow Program sends experienced TESOL professionals from the United States on teaching assignments at universities and other academic institutions around the world. In Kazakhstan, the EL Fellow Program provides highly qualified teachers of English as a foreign language to Kazakhstan Universities.

English Language Fellows work closely with English language teachers, students, and education professionals to improve English language teaching capacity. Program participants serve as representatives and cultural ambassadors of the United States.

During the 2021-2022 academic year, two English Language Fellows will be placed in Kazakhstan Educational Institutions: August Garnsey at Gumilyov Eurasian National University and Seth Sinclair at Almaty branch of the National Center of Professional Development Orleu.

English Language Specialist Program

Provides specialized training for In-Service Institutes, schools, universities and other academic institutions conducted by American academics, experts and teacher trainers in the fields of English as a Foreign Language, Methodology of English Language Teaching and Applied Linguistics on a short-term basis throughout the Central Asia region.

These American experts can facilitate workshops, seminars and conference keynotes on topics such as curriculum development, teacher training and education, textbook development, English for Specific Purposes, program evaluation, and many other topics.

This year, due to COVID 19, we work with the Virtual English Language Specialists, who can meet with audiences online providing workshops and trainings.

More information on this program can be found here: <https://elprograms.org/specialist/>
